FRENCH BIAS

FRENCH Foreign Minister Schumann's remarks to two French newspapers, quoted on another page in this issue be tray once again the basically anti-Israel posture which the French Government has pursued and continues to pursue since

He insists on Israel's return to the previous borders, suggesting that we should rely on guaran-tees to secure our future behind the very frontiers whose fragility led to war. And at the same time he implies that his pro-posals represent not a specific reading of French interests, but a concern, the concern of a friend, for Israel's best interests.

The protests of friendship are subtly based upon a supposed recent improvement in French-Israel relations coming in the wake of the agreement on the embargoed Mirage lets.

Israel had hoped that this agreement might in fact open a new chapter in relations between the two countries. But this hope has been largely dashed.

The French Government has not budged from its previous stance. It follows the same partisan pro-Arab course on every issue it is still adament in op-posing Israel's quest of associa-tion with the Common Market It alone, amongst the other Mart members, is seeking to find a formula which would permit Egypt and Lebanon to continue the economic boycott of Israel with the Common Market's blessing. It is the only European state which has never permitted one of its ministers to visit is-rael. And Mr. Schumann was quite explicit about his intention to continue that policy.

This hostility must affect issues beyond that of Israel's frontiers and the correct interpretation of U.N. resolution 242. It also transcends France's singular role in bringing about Israel's recent condemnation by the U.N. Committee on Human Rights over the occupied areas. Last week's municipal elections on the West Bank provided an ample rejoinder to that ealumny by showing how the people in the West Bank feet esseeming their status and their cooperation with the military enverter.

nal frontiers, France is effectively obstructing peaceful understanding in the area — contrary to the policy of most European Unlike Mr. Schumann, foreigh ministers of all the other E.E.C. states have come to Israel to examine the situation here at first hand and have sought to make a positive contribution to mutual understanding. Even Britain's Douglas-Home, noted for his cautious attitude, and certainly not suspect of any anti-Arab bent, made his voice heard, subsequent to his recent visit, in a really balanced way.

And Germany's Willy Brandt — who must have an under-standing for Soviet feelings no less profound than that of Paris would not have agreed to visit Israel had he not felt that this would also contribute to international understanding.

The role France has played in promoting the Common Market, and in expanding it to a major economic and political entity, should have made it more prepared to also promote regional cooperation in this part of the world. But to that end it must first free itself from its own

Egypt, U.S. discussing 'proximity talks'

Jerussiem Post Arab Affairs Reporter There were indications from Cairo yesterday that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is presently involved in an intensive round of contacts The contacts are believed to have been going on for some time. However, they appear to have been in-tensified this week, prompting Pre-sident Sadat to postpone for two weeks a "political report" he was scheduled to deliver to the Egyptian parliament today.

According to Cairo's semi-official
"Al-Ahram" newspaper, Mr. Sadat will deliver his address on April 15, and will deal with his "recent contacts with the U.S."

It was not clear last night whe-

The Egyptian President was scheduled to address the Fatah-sponsored raily on Egypt's rejection of King Hussein's plan for a Jordaman-Palestiman federation linking Jordan with the Israel-administered West Bank.

Mr. Sadat yesterday delegated his personal envoy, Dr. Hassan Sabri el-Khouly, to Tripoli and Damascus, to deliver messages to Libyan head of state Mn'ammer Gaddafi and Syrian President Hafez Assad. Meanwhile, President Sadat yesterday began talks with Rumania's

President Nicolae Ceausescu, who had arrived in the Egyptian Capital for an official visit. On Sunday night Mr. Sadat told President Ceausescu the Arab people would not remain idle in the face of "imperialist and Zionist

In reply, President Ceausescu assured the Egyptian leader Rumania

'Where did Hussein learn Hassidism?'

The chief topic is understood to have been President Nixon's forth-coming trip to Moscow and the pos-sible repercussions his talks there may have on the Middle East. King Hussein's Washington visit was also likely to have been discussed, ac-cording to informed sources.

Mr. Rabin, here on a brief visit, met first with Foreign Minister Abba Eban. The two went to a meeting with Prime Minister Golda Meir and several Cabinet Ministers. While Mr. Rabin's future is believed to have come up in his talks, it is unlikely that the matter will he be replaced at the end of this ington in 1968.

The most recent addition to the demed in Saigon. list of rumoured possible replace-ment for Mr. Rabin is Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek, a Minister in Kollek has said that he will not run again for Mayor. However, the local elections are due only in October 1973, and as it is unlikely that Mr. Kollek would cut his term short, Mr. Rabin would probably be pressed to stay in his post for another year if Mr. Kollek is chosen.

Another name being mentioned for the Washington post is that of Mr. Haim Herzog. The possibility that a professional diplomat from the Foreign Ministry will be appointed has not been ruled out, according to some sources.

Egypt repeats charge of deportations

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter). -Egypt yesterday charged Israel with resorting to a campaign of distor-tions and unfounded allegations to ministered territories.

Egyptian U.N. Ambassador Esmat Abdel Meguid reiterated an earlier Egyptian charge that in January Is-rael authorities forcibly transferred 10,000 Egyptian citizens from their homes in Sinai to other areas within a triangle of land near the Gaza Strip.

Dr. Meguid said this Egyptian charge, contained in a letter to the U.N. on March 15, had now been corroborated by an American news agency report from Jerusalem on March 26, which, he said, quoted the 104,600 tons larger than the biggest lands and a just solution for the Israel Government as admitting tanker now affort, the Nisseki Maru. U.S. jets start bombings in bid to slow advance

The U.S. Command called in extra air and naval firepower in a move to protect the lives of U.S. troops being pulled out of the war theatre in keeping with President Nixon's policy to hand the war effort over to the South Vietnamese.

As dense rain clouds lifted at noon giant B-52 Stratofortresses and tactical fighter-bombers from U.S. carriers in the Guif of Tonkin took off on missions against the advancing North Vietnamese troops, who have now overrun the northern half of Quang Tri Province.

The air strikes are expected to penetrate north across the demilitarized zone and into North Vietnam to smash heavy 130 mm. field gun positions pouring shells on South Vietnam's defences. In the Gulf of Tonkin the guns of U.S. warships face the northern main-

The U.S. military called in two

WASHINGTON. State Department spokesman yesterday termed North Vietnam's thrust into Scuth Vietnam through the demiliturized zone as the most serious violation of the understandings that led to a halt in the bombing of the north in

The spokesman, Mr. Robert McCloskey, said the North Vietnamese offensive was "an invasion" of South Vietnam. His statement left open the distinct possibility that President Nixon would order new large-scale bombings of North Victnam it-self as he has in the past when the U.S. has charged violations of the 1968 understandings.

Mr. McCloskey also refused to rule out the use of U.S. combat troops in support of South Vietnamese forces. "My remarks... leave open a course of action by the United States to meet a deteriorating military situation," he said when asked if U.S. troops would become involved in the fighting.

"I cannot anticipate when an announcement will be made in that regard. In light of the situstion the United States is reviewing its policies but I am not in a position to say whether there will be a change in our course of action."

Mr. McCloskey said his own understanding of the situation was based on a meeting at the White House yesterday morning attended by President Nixon, national security adviser Henry Kissinger and high State and Defence department officials.

He declined to say whether the North Vietnamese activities have led to a reassessment of the U.S. decision to reduce U.S. troops in South Vietnam to 69,000 by May 1, but other official sources said that nothing occurred at the morning meeting which would place the current plan in jeopardy. flag to the meeting from the funeral of a woman killed in crossfire during a gumbattle in the Andersons town area. When Mrs. Brigid Miller, one of the organizers, rose in a Catholic school hall to speak, half the crowd roared chants of "Up the I.R.A." and sang the Irish Repubhic anthem.

"We want peace," Mrs. Miller shouted, referring to the movement for a truce in the Andersonstown district. The pro-LRA women shout-ed back and waved placards reading We Support the Provos" (the Provisional wing of the LR.A.).

"We are not against the Provos..." Mrs. Miller protested, but she was drowned by boos and cabcalls. Women jostled and pushed each

Writer tells of 'whisper campaign' against him

SOLZHENI SYN'S STRUGGLE

NEW YORK (AP). — "Your Mesterners cannot imagine my situation." Aleksander Solkhenitsyn is thus quoted in a four hour interview in Moscow published in the "New York Times" yesterday. The 53-year-old Russian movelist, who won the 1970 Nobel Prize for Intersine was talling correspondent Hedrick Single how difficult it is to write under Soviet pressure. He told at length of what my interviewer described as a deficit struggle to continue writing under the stigme of official ostracism and under the pressure of an official campaign to suffocate me."

"A kind of forbidden contaminated zone has been created ground my family. I live in my own country, I write a novel about Russia, but it is as hard for me to gather material as it would be if I were writing about Polynesia."

The correspondent said that Solzhenitsyn "gave a chilling and deeply revealing description of the techniques of what he said was an official "whisper campaign" mounted by Communists. Solzhenitsyn said these whispers included untrue reports that he had collaborated with the Germans in that he had collaborated with the Germans in World War Two, that he had Jewish ancestors and that the Nobel Prize was a Judas payment

Having been expelled from the Soviet Writers' Union in November 1969, Solzhenitsyn said he offered the manuscript of his latest novel, "August 1914," to seven Soviet publishers before sending it to the West. He added: "Not one of these seven wanted to take the manuscript in hand — let alone read it or even leaf through it. No one answered my letter. Not one asked for the manu-

Bangladesh on brink of collapse, starvation'

NEW YORK (AP). — Bangla-desh is on the brink of starvation and collapse and what is left of and consider and what is left of Pakistan is locked in its own mon-umental struggle for survival," "Newsweak" concluded in a survey published this week,

The magazine added Pakistani President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto has one of the world's hardest jobs, which sometimes appears to push him towards nervous desperation.

"In economic terms alone," "Newsweek" added, "Bhutto's regime faces staggering problems, Before Bangiadesh broke away, Pakistan was fairly well-off compared to most other developing nations. The east-ern region provided a guaranteed market of 75 million people for the burgeoning industries of the West... with last December's turmoil all that changed. Pakisten's gross national product dropped by $15 billion to $10 billion and its foreign exchange earnings (mostly because of the loss of Bengal jute production) fell by thirty-five per cent."

Separatist movements

As well as this are the political problems, including separatist movements, and "neither the Indians nor the Bengalis seem the least bit in-terested in making Bhutto's task any easier."

To combat public discontent, 'Newsweek' said, Bhutto has moved forward with "a dazzling display of reform decrees... But Bhutto's re-form programme has already begun to tarnish. In most cases, the money necessary to carry out his schemes is simply not available. And Bhut-to's critics question his sincerity. Humphrey call to U.S. on Jerusalem

In a campaign address at the Jewish Community Centre here for today's election, Senator Humphrey declared: "We were wrong not to recognize Jerusalem as the capital of Israel in 1948. We were wrong not to cry out when Jordanian forces occupied half of that sacred city later that year.
"We were wrong to remain silent

when the centuries-old Jewish quarter was reduced to rubble, and shrines of deep significance to Chris-tian and Jew alike were desecrated. 'We compound these wrongs today by ignoring the reunification of Jerusalem and the humane administration of that city under Israeli

LIFE IN THE NEW CUBA

HAVANA (AP).

THOSE who are dedicated to building a new socialist so-ciety in Cobs. find exciting and stimulating changes taking place. For others, however, there is a grey sameness to the work and the country.

The people who are rebuilding the agricultural base to the ecoeducation system and developing industries show eagerness and vitality.

But for many who must carry out the details of the new programmes there is repetitive and unstimulating work. Almost all commodities are rationed and usually there are long queues to obtain the few consumer goods and services available.

The official work week is 44 hours, but contributory overtime and weekend work are encouraged; those unsympathetic to the regime say it is required.

Regular campaigns There are regular campaigns for a variety of projects, from harvesting crops to building new baseball stadiums. Voluntary work is a way of getting extra production. It also is a way of involving Cubans in different aspects of developing the country and of filling in time in a country where leisure possibilities are Cubans whose jobs allow them to travel around the island see that there is growth: "See that factory? I was here six months ago and it wasn't there."

The factory was one built near Cienfuegos to make prefabricated cement slabs for building construction. The comment was made by a photographer with whom I shared a ride on a tour of industrial and agricultural sites in the interior of the island. Cuban Government publications make the growth appear impres-sive by making selective comparisons with conditions under pre-Castro administrations.

The reduction of the illiteracy rate, increased educational facilities, improvements in the cattle herd and expansion of electrical capacity are among things about which the Government boasts. Every Cuban participates in the drive to develop the economy because a strict rationing system ensures that most get only basic necessities. "Merit workers" get the new extras - such as television sets and sewing machines — that are available. Cubans critical of the Castro regime concede that there was not an equitable distribution of benefits under previous govern-ments, but they contend that all this Government has done has been to spread poverty evenly. The critics contend that despite corruption, Cubans were materially better off and there was no starvation under the old administrations, when U.S. investment was a major factor in the country's economy.

Complaints are mainly about rationing. The ration of meat, mostly pork, is a half-pound a week. Milk is available to children only until the age of three. The sugar ration was reduced in February from six pounds a month to four.

Government officials say it is not necessary to be a Communist Party member to get the benefits available to merit workers, but being a "good revolu-tionary" is one of the factors in assigning merit points.

There is a committee at each work centre which assigns merit points, and the committee is so structured that at least half its members must be party mem-

Economic progress in the territories

THE current debate about the future of the administered territories makes it worth while having nother look at their statistics. What, for instance, is their share in Israel's total Gross National Product (GNP)? It turns out that the question is more easily asked than answered, because parts of the terri-tories — such as Jewish settlements in the Golan and in Judea are treated for statistical purposes as part of Israel proper. But there is no doubt that the territories' share in our GNP is rising rapidly. In 1963 — the first year after the Six Day War -it seems to have been about 4 per cent. However, the rate of economic growth in the territories has been about double that of Israel, so that today they may account — if we include the Sinai oil — for up to 8 per cent of the country's GNP. Unless artistical checks ficial checks are applied this trend must be expected to continue, for the simple reason that it is in these regions that the economic resources in particular land and labour are available.

Israel banks

The territories' economic progress is also shown by the expansion of Israel banks operating there. Bank Leumi now has 11 branch offices there including one in Abu Rodeis). Barclays-Discount four, and Bank Happalim three (including one in Kuneitra). Over the past year the amount of public deposits held by these banks increased by about onehalf, while the amount of credit doubled. Nevertheless, the amount of deposits held in the Israeli banks is but a fraction of the funds which were deposited in the Arab banks doubled. Nevertheless, the amount of were deposited in the Arab banks before the Six Day War. Although have reportedly already been repaid in various ways, most of the money — which has been estimated than that. at $25m. — seems to have been transferred abroad.

Economic Editor Moshe Ater says that the growth rate in the territories has been about double that in Israel. He discusses its long-term significance.

It expects all the 36,000 workers to come from Israel, within the "Green Line," But will the influx of workers from the administered territories cease? Growth shares have not upheld hopes

By J. VOET

WITH Dekel, the growth fund of W the Israel Discount Bank, sur-passing the 300 mark in both buy-ing and selling rates, this seems to be a good moment to pause and consider the results of the two "growth" Unit Trust Funds, Yigdal and Dekel (presently administered by the Bank Leumi) that are avail-able on the Israel Stock Market.

Yigdal and Dekel were founded one soon after the other, more than one soon after the other, more than nine years ago, when growth shares were very much the fashion. It was not the annual receipt of taxable dividends that was important, so it was argued, but the growth in value on the Stock Exchange, enabling the owner to dispose of the shares at a profit that would be tax-free at least in this country. Both in Germany and in Switzerland, unit trusts of growth shares were very popular a decade ago. They were composed of selected shares chosen for their growth potential. Dividends count for over one-quarter of the popular a decade ago. They were labour requests supplied (including composed of selected shares chosen — in January last — 8 per cent for their growth potential. Dividends of the skilled labour supplied to industry, and three-quarters of that supplied to construction). But more significant are the following figures — based on the National Budgets — which show the dependence of for a profit in page of future sale. which show the dependence of for a profit in case of future sale. Israel economy on that manpower.

Invested in shares

The results abroad with growth funds and with unit trusts specializing in this particular category have been anything but spectacular. In many cases the performance of socalled growth funds has been dis-appointing. The idea of investing in growth shares is now decidedly less popular than it was a few years

In Israel, Yigdal and later Dekel invested the major part of the moneys entrusted to them in shares are virtually no so-called growth shares quoted on the Tel Aviv Stock

The moment chosen for starting in 1963 when share prices were fairly high was not a particular favourable one. After initially obtaining quite good results, there was a severe drop in prices during the market slump of the 'sixties and very slow growth indeed, if any, in the slowdown years. After a time, Dekel, by virtue of a luckier buying and selling policy, achieved somewhat better results than Yigwere regularly 25 to 30 per cent above those of Yigdal. Although Yig-dal benefited more from the recent strong market advance, its price is fluctuating at present somewhere above 250, as compared with 300 reached by Dekel.

Good returns

What do these quotations mean in terms of yield, that is, average income over a period of more than nine years for the investor who bought either Yigdal or Dekel at the start and held on to the funds nomy continue to expand so as to throughout the depression, but now absorb another, say, 45,000, i.e. 4.5 decides to sell? The lucky owner of per cent of the employed labour Dekel has made over 12 per cent Dekel has made over 12 per cent per annum on his money at compound interest. The Yigdal investors will have netted over 10 per cent still a very good return taking into account that everything earned is tax free.

These favourable results should fected. The forecast included in the go far to indicate that shares have

> The value of the Yigdal portfolio now fluctuates between IL2.5m and IL3m. Dekel's is only slightly higher. Both funds, started with high hopes, have recently played next to no part in attracting money from the investing public. New unit trusts, investing mostly in debentures, like "Gavish," have, on the other hand, collected substantial amounts of money. The relatively minor proportion that these funds have put in shares, is not greater than the total investment of the pure share funds, Yigdal and Dekel, com-

SOLUTIONS TO TODAY'S PUZZLES ON FRIDAY

Championship race tightens

Derby County, who defeated Leeds United on Saturday to take over the leadership of the Eirst Division, suffered their first home defeat of the season yesterday when they went down 0-1 to Newcastle, A. 75th minute goal by Thompson put paid to Derby's hopes of opening up a three point lead at the head of the table over Manchester City, who were not involved in yesterday's, games, Instead it was Liverpool who took advantage of City's rest-day by beating Manchester United 3-0 and moving into second place with a better goal average than City. Leeds, who were also idle yesterday, slipped down to fourth posttion. Derby have 51 points from 37 games, Liverpool and Manches-ter City both have 50 but Man-chester have only played 36 games. Moshe Dayan's position is embiguous; Galili's insistence on the Jordan as a political and not merely a security border does not seem to be compatible with the return of most of Judea and Samaria to Hashemite rule; the National Religious Party ls on record against any surrender of part of State. That concept was the basis the Land of Israel.

The official plan, too, has other defects. It implies that the "Green Line" — even if modified in Israel's favour — will again become an in-ternational frontier, with all the re-States deliberately obstructed the suitant difficulties for communi-integration of the Palestinians in cations, especially from Jeruselem order to keep the Palestine problem to north and south.

The Gaza Strip

The incorporation of the Gaza Strip would almost double Israel's Arab population. Even allowing for the larger proportion of children among the Arabs, that might well mean as many as 20 Arab members in the Knesset, with incarculable consequences for the future balance of political forces in the country, for there is no guarantee that they would continue, as in the present, to be attached to Jewish parties.

Nor is it easy to visualize Arab state constituted according to munications between the two parts restricted to one or two crossing points under Israeli control Would Kingdom.

Boman: "Drottningbolm Musis"; Sibelius: Viedin Concerto; Britten: "Spring Symphony."

"DROTTNINGHOLM Music," by the Swedish composer Johann Heinrich Roman (1694-1738), is a piece well worth listening to, and Mr. Comissiona skilfully brought out its broad lines and brassy splendour. This is typical Baroque, which seems perfectly natural for a composer who studied with Handel and must have been acquainted with his Water Music.

·Waiting for the Sibelius Concerto to begin. Miss Machashi's splendid playing on her previous visit two years ago still rang in my ears. and her performance of the Sibelius fully justified my expectations. Her tone may not be particularly great and lush, but what she lacks in tonal splendour is fully compensated for by emotional richness. The concerto started beautifully,

Mr. Comissions holding the orchestra back in a mysterious murmur, paying the way for the violin's antry with arresting expressiveness. The whole first movement is a lofty poem of nature — the kind of music you oling to with immense following premises:

One of the commonplace beliefs about Benjamin Britten is that everything he has written - and he has written a great deal - is accomplished. This may be true as far as technical and professional skill is concerned but there are times when his inspiration seems to have falled him. Today more than ever, she hardly sticks to the tune at it is common ly known, her lines weave in andout of the original, her wide registers are put to effect, embelianments overgrow the simplicity of the melodies which are used as point of departure almost in the oriental manner. Her extruser stage performance now is dynamic in its almost uncontrolled showing weeping, whispering. Rhythmically infallible most of the songs get fingers snapping, feet tapping lips moving, at least among the many young Americans present, encourage ed by the singer, who likes audience participation.

What was most annoying was the long string of patter - long-winded sometimes completely irrelevant, always most uninteresting, rarely amusing or illuminating — which took up more time in her programme than her singing. Appearing in a wig a la Angela Davis in the first part did not make any sense in a concert, as it was probably meant as a political demonstra-tion and identification; her many allusions to the contemporary American scene had no meaning for an BENJAMIN BAR-AM audience which was lured into the concert hall by her great reputation as a folksinger, and came to hear her sing folksongs.

No wonder that many felt let down and, although respecting Odetta for undeniably great artistry, regretted that the really fine things in life get tainted with sophistication or commercialism after so short a period of making people happy with their own, clean quality, YOHANAN BOEHY.

French oleh to be extradited on kidnap charge

TEL AVIV - Patrick Jean-Clande Tevardier, a young French immi-grant wanted in Lyons on two kidnapping charges, will be extradited to France, Tel Aviv District Court President Zeev Zeltner ruled yes-terday. Judge Zeltner also ruled that Tevardier, who has been held since early March, can apply for release on ball until the French come to collect him. But he told the 25-year-old Frenchman that he would have to apply directly to the Jewish Agency for help in support-ing his wife and three children, Post who came here with him and will remain in Israel.

The extradition decision came after the court had spent two hours going over some 52 documents from France, most of them relating to pre-trial investigations in Lyons. These charge Tevardier with being one of six men allegedly involved in two abortive kidnep attempts that occurred in the French city last June, both apparently involving fallings-out among local pimps.
One of the documents in the dossier examined by the court was a letter written by Tevardier to the investigating judge in Lyons. In the letter, which he sent from Israel, Tevardier explained that he knew the gentlemen involved in the affair
